

Aging in Prison:

The Integration of Research and Practice

Martha H. Hurley

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS

Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2014
Martha Henderson Hurley
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Hurley, Martha Henderson.

Aging in prison : the integration of research and practice / Martha Henderson Hurley.

pages cm

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-59460-994-7 (alk. paper)

1. Older prisoners--United States. I. Title.

HV9469.H868 2014

365'.608460973--dc23

2013030378

Carolina Academic Press
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

To David Hurley, Caleb Hurley, and Grace Hurley, who all sacrificed something so that I could write this book.

To my mother, Betty Henderson, who did the best she could for me as a child and who is doing so much more now for me as a grandmother.

To the memory of my father, Lee Henderson, Jr., who was a true “son of the South.” Hard work, dedication, and perseverance have twice now paid off.

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
Chapter 1 · Why Study Long-Term and Elderly Prisoners?	3
Driving Forces for Long-Term and Elderly Increases in Prison Populations	4
Consequences of Long-Term Incarceration	7
Number of Incarcerated	7
The High Costs of Incarceration	11
The Elderly in Prison	12
Questioning the Need to Incarcerate Elderly Inmates	13
Why Write This Book?	14
Purpose and Organization	16
References	17
Chapter 2 · Who Are the Long-Term Inmates? What Are the Costs?
What Are Their Needs?	21
Defining Long-Term Inmates	23
Snapshot: National Estimates of the Long-Term Offender Population	23
Minorities	27
Women	28
Costs of Incarceration for Long-Term Inmates	29
How Does Long-Term Incarceration Affect Male Prisoners?	29
How Does Long-Term Incarceration Affect Female Prisoners?	31
What Happens Upon Release?	32
Conclusions	34
References	35
Chapter 3 · Who Are the Elderly Inmates? What Are the Costs?
What Are Their Needs?	41
Defining Elderly, Senior, or Older Citizens in the General Population	43

Snapshot: National Estimates of the Elderly	44
Challenges in Defining the Elderly Inmate	46
Types of Elderly Inmates	47
Profile of the Elderly Inmate	48
Female Elderly Prisoners	50
Needs of Elderly Inmates	51
Conclusion	52
References	52
Chapter 4 • Medical Health Issues	59
Why Focus on the Medical Issues of Long-Term and Elderly Inmates?	60
Costs of Medical Care for the Elderly and Long-Term Prisoner	62
What and Who Is to Blame?	63
Health Care Problems Among Inmates	64
Communicable Diseases	65
Sexually Transmitted Diseases	65
Syphilis	67
Gonorrhea	68
Chlamydia	69
Trichomoniasis	70
HIV/AIDS	71
Tuberculosis	76
Hepatitis	77
Chronic Illnesses	79
Asthma	80
Diabetes	81
Hypertension	82
Heart Disease	83
Mortality	84
Effective Approaches for Reducing Costs for Medical Health
Problems of Long-Term and Elderly Prisoners	86
Conclusion	91
References	91
Chapter 5 • Mental Health Needs	103
Why Focus on the Mental Health Needs of Long-Term
and Elderly Inmates?	104
Characteristics of Mentally Disordered Prisoners	106
Age and Prisoner Mental Health Problems	107

Most Common Mental Illnesses Among Inmates Aged 55 and Up	109
Late Onset Schizophrenia	109
Prevalence of Schizophrenia in Correctional Settings	112
Depression	112
Prevalence of Depression in Correctional Settings	113
Dementia/Alzheimer's	113
Prevalence of Alzheimer's in Correctional Settings	115
Anxiety Disorders	115
Prevalence of Anxiety Disorders in Correctional Settings	117
Suicide	118
Prevalence of Suicide in Correctional Environments	119
Causes of Higher Suicide Rates in Correctional Contexts	120
Long-Term Incarceration	120
Lack of Social Support	121
Interpersonal Conflict with Other Inmates	122
High Rate of Medical and Mental Health Problems	123
Institutional Contextual Problems	124
Effective Approaches for Dealing with the Mental Health
Problems of Long-Term and Elderly Prisoners	125
Conclusion	126
References	126
 Chapter 6 • Victimization	 135
Victimization Research Is Complicated	136
Defining Prisoner Victimization	136
Prevalence and Incidence of Victimization in Prison	138
Special Circumstance—Sexual Victimization	139
Sexual Victimization Through the Ages	139
How Does Sexual Victimization Differ in Prison from the Community?	140
Consequences of Victimization	140
What Does All This Mean for Elderly Prisoners?	141
Why Does Victimization Matter?	142
Pre-Prison Trauma	142
Inmate Subculture and Adaptation	143
Age-Related Mental and Physical Decline	144
Nature of Offense	144
Victimization Is Under-Reported	145
What Is the Extent of Victimization?	145

Consequences of Victimization	146
Conclusion	147
References	148
Chapter 7 · Programs and Sentencing Options	153
Driving Forces of the Shift in Sentencing	154
Solutions to the Elderly Prisoner Problem	155
The Do Nothing Argument	155
Early Release	157
Parole Prisoners as Normal	157
Geriatric Release—Considering Age and Disability	158
Home Detention	160
Alternative Living Environments Within the Institution	161
Sample of U.S. Prison Programs	163
True Grit Geriatric Unit in Northern Nevada Correctional Center (NNCC)	163
Florida Programs	164
The State of Louisiana Hospice Program at Angola	164
The Maryland Hospice Program	165
Laurel Highlands in Pennsylvania	165
The Virginia Special Needs Facility	165
Conclusion	166
References	166
Court Cases	169
Chapter 8 · An Ethic of Care	171
An Ethic of Care Perspective	174
The Application of an Ethic of Care for the Elderly in Prison	176
Conclusion	178
References	179
Court Cases	182
Index	183

Acknowledgments

The path to writing this book began when the Illinois Legislature decided that it was in the state's best interest to examine what happened to long-term prisoners. Without their decision to take a holistic approach to the study of incarceration trends and the impact of prison on long-term prisoners, this book never would have been written.

This book could not have been written without the support of David Hurley. Your willingness to proofread the book and comment on style has again proven invaluable. You are now a policing scholar who knows far more than any other the folly of continuing to incarcerate prisoners well beyond their crime-prone years.

Assistance on this book was also provided by the graduate assistant Heather Alvarado. Heather became engaged with the issues confronting the long-term and elderly prisoner and did an excellent job helping to prepare the final manuscript and editing references.

I would like to acknowledge Beth Hall and Tasha Pippin at Carolina Academic Press. No matter how many fits and starts, your encouragement and emails reminded me to get back to work.

I have saved the most important for last—the long-term and elderly prisoners. Your experience of prison deserves far more attention than what can be included in this book. At the start of this project, I had one major question. What is the fiscally responsible thing to do for you? I have ended this book with a different question. What is the ethical thing to do for you?