To my wife, whose support, encouragement, and enthusiasm through countless hours made this book possible;

To my parents, thank you for everything; and

To my children, in the hope that they will live in a society in which the spirit of laws like the Community Reinvestment Act has reached its full potential.

Acknowledgments

This book would not have been possible without the help of several people and organizations; I thank them here at the risk of leaving some out.

I thank the many clients, students, organizations, and colleagues with whom I have worked on CRA challenges and issues, including Asian Americans for Equality, Center for Community Change, Community Coalition for Fair Banking, Ecumenical Community Development Organization, Fifth Avenue Committee, Inner City Press/Community on the Move, Interfaith Center for Corporate Responsibility, National Community Reinvestment Coalition, Neighborhood Economic Development Advocacy Project, New York State Division of Human Rights, South Brooklyn Legal Services, David Berenbaum, Ray Brescia, Carol Buckler, Michelle Cotton, Allen Fishbein, Debbie Goldberg, Larry Grosberg, Jasmine Hopper, Donna Katzin, Lori Keitz, Richard Krulik, Chris Kui, Brad Lander, Matthew Lee, Sarah Ludwig, Josh Silver, John Taylor, April Tyler, and Jean Vernet.

I thank Professor Roberto Unger, whose law school seminar taught me that social reform and economic development are not necessarily in conflict.

I thank my research assistants, especially In-Yu Woo, Scott Lustig, Anna Shusterman, Megan Eiss-Proctor, and Robert Whalen.

I thank my assistants Susan Demaio and Cathy Jenkins.

For their comments on earlier drafts, I thank Jean Marie Brescia, Steve Ellmann, Josh Silver, Michael Sinclair, and the participants in several New York Law School Tuesday Faculty Lunches.

Finally, I thank New York Law School for its generous financial support of my research.
