

Sequoyah Rising

Problems in Post-Colonial Tribal Governance

Steve Russell

CITIZEN OF THE CHEROKEE NATION
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR,
INDIANA UNIVERSITY, BLOOMINGTON

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS

Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2010
Steve Russell
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Russell, Steve.

Sequoyah rising : problems in post-colonial tribal governance /
Steve Russell.

p. cm.

ISBN 978-1-59460-716-5 (alk. paper)

1. Cherokee Indians--Politics and government. 2. Cherokee Indians--Government relations. 3. Cherokee Indians--Tribal citizenship. 4. Tribal government--United States. 5. Indian courts--
United States. 6. Self-determination, National--United States. 7.
United States--Race relations. 8. United States--Politics and government. I. Title.

E99.C5R95 2010

975.004'97557--dc22

2009051512

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
1. An Introduction Mostly for Indians	3
2. History as Prelude	11
“Indian America”	13
How to Succeed as an Indian Poet	14
What Indians Want	16
Blood Quantum	18
The Year They Drilled for Oil	20
Chitto Harjo	23
What I Learned and Didn’t Learn at the Bristow, Oklahoma Historical Society Museum	24
Bosque Redondo: Homage to Yevgeny Yevtushenko	26
3. On Blame	29
4. Sovereignty v. Dependency	37
5. Relativism v. Universalism	41
6. Individual Rights v. Tribal Rights: First Iteration	45
7. Sovereignty Asserted and Abused	49
8. Individual Rights v. Tribal Rights in the News	63
9. Individual Rights v. Tribal Rights in Theory	77
10. Interest Groups v. Peoplehood	103
A. Race and Tradition	105
B. Race as a European Disease	110
C. Citizenship by Blood Quantum	115

D. Citizenship by Direct Descent	123
E. Citizenship by Culture	126
F. Nationhood or Peoplehood?	135
11. Sequoyah Rising	141
12. A Word to the Wanabi Nation	151
13. Putting the Post- in Post-Colonial	159
14. National Defense of Sovereign Nations	169
A. Choose Means that Are Consistent with Our Ends	174
B. Distinguish between the Act and the Actor	174
C. Seek Win-Win Solutions	175
D. Reject Both Retaliation and Flight	175
E. Choose Openness, Transparency, and Truthfulness	176
F. Transform Our Anger Rather Than Let It Transform Us	176
G. Exercise Our Power by Withdrawing Our Cooperation	177
H. Minor Objections	178
Index	181

Acknowledgments

I have tried to cite materials correctly because I understand that I'm part of an ongoing conversation relying on the work of others. At the risk of leaving people out, I must also acknowledge contributions by some persons that involve personal and email conversations and documents not cited: Taiaiake Alfred, Richard Allen, Marcia Baron, Duane Champagne, David Cornsilk, Jeff Corntassel, Peter d'Errico, Jack Forbes, Johnnie Flynn, Thurman Lee Hester, Jr., Jennifer Lawson, Stacy Leeds, Steve Newcomb, Hal Pepinsky, Robert Odawi Porter, James Riding In, Rennard Strickland, and Russell Thornton.

Vine Deloria, Jr. did more for my thinking and my career than I can express by putting him on a list. His work inspired me before I knew him and when we later corresponded he always thought I was better than I thought I was. It's hard to overstate his impact on this high school dropout.

Mary Mobley Istvan and Sara M. Walsh both improved my prose considerably at times when they both had more urgent matters demanding attention.

Chapter 2 previously appeared as "The Cherokee Nation: A Colonial Morality Play in Three Acts," in Eating Fire, Tasting Blood: Breaking the Great Silence of the American Indian Holocaust (Marijo Moore, ed., 2006), 128–145. Chapter 7 is a revised version of "Sovereign Decisions: A Plan for Defeating Federal Review of Tribal Law Applications," 20 Wicazo Sa Review (2005), 93–108. Chapter 10 is a revised version of "The Racial Paradox of Tribal Citizenship," 46 American Studies (2005), 147–169. Chapter 11 previously appeared as "Sequoyah Rising: Doing What We Can With What We Have," 18 Kansas Jour- nal of Law and Public Policy (2009), 1–7. The anonymous referees and editors involved in those early publications all deserve thanks.

It should go without saying that I bear sole responsibility for any errors remaining in this text and for any mistakes I have made in absorbing the ideas to which I have been exposed. I am grateful to the scholars named above, the scholars cited in this book, my wife Tracy for her tolerance of my obsession with tribal government, and all the people who choose to continue this conversation. Wa do!