

Coming to Law School

How to Prepare Yourself for the Next Three Years

Ian Gallacher

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2010
Ian Gallacher
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Gallacher, Ian, 1956-

Coming to law school : how to prepare yourself for the next three years / Ian Gallacher.

p. cm.

ISBN 978-1-59460-653-3 (alk. paper)

1. Law students--United States--Handbooks, manuals, etc. 2. Law--Study and teaching--United States. 3. Law--Vocational guidance--United States. I. Title.

KF283.G35 2010
340.071'173--dc22

2009048883

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

To Julie McKinstry, who helped when I came to law school and who has helped every day before and since

Contents

Acknowledgments	xi
1 • Introduction	3
2 • Quick Overview	9
3 • Reading	13
A. Active Reading and Law Students	14
1. Read for a Reason	15
2. Place the Case in Context	15
3. Answer Any Questions You Have before Moving On	16
4. Don't Read on Automatic Pilot	16
B. Active Reading in Action	17
1. Surface Detail	18
a. Jurisdiction	18
b. Citation	19
c. Finding the Case	20
d. Level of Court	20
e. Procedural Posture	21
f. Existence of a Dissent	21
g. Date of Decision	22
h. Identity of the Judge Who Wrote the Opinion	22
2. Reading Like a Lawyer	23
C. Reading and the Internet	28
4 • Case Briefing	29
A. How to Brief	31
1. Read the Case First	31
2. Case Title and Citation	32
3. Identity of the Parties	32
4. Procedural History	33
5. Facts	34
6. Issues	35

7. Summary of Arguments	36
8. Holding	36
9. Court's Rationale for Holding	37
10. The Court's Order	37
11. Your Thoughts and Comments	38
B. Briefing in Action	39
5 • Note Taking	51
A. When to Start Taking Notes	51
B. How to Format Your Notes	53
C. Computer, Paper, and Recording	55
1. Recording	55
2. Computers and Pens	56
D. The Content of Your Notes	58
E. Note Review	60
6 • Outlining	63
A. When to Start Outlining	64
B. What Form Should Your Outline Take?	65
1. Skeleton Outlines	65
2. Narrative Outlines	66
3. The Benefits of Employing Both Outlining Approaches	67
7 • Time Management	69
A. Why Time Is at a Premium in Law School	69
B. Treat Law School Like a Job	70
C. Plan What Work You're Going to Do and When You'll Do It	72
D. Maintain an Accurate Calendar	73
E. Perform a Time Audit	76
8 • Writing	79
A. The General Perception That Lawyers Are Bad Writers	79
B. Good Writing Is Reader-Centered	81
C. Good Writing Is Easy to Read	82
1. Technical Accuracy	83
2. Structure	84
3. Voice	85
4. Plain Language	86
D. Good Writing Is Not Easy	87
E. Good Writing Is About Character	88

9 • Structure of the U.S. Court System	91
A. Federal Courts	91
1. Civil versus Criminal	92
2. Trial Court Level	93
3. The Courts of Appeals	94
4. The Supreme Court	98
B. State Courts	100
10 • Hierarchy of Authority	103
A. Court Ranking	103
B. Legal Issues	105
C. Persuasive Authority	108
11 • The Legislative Branch	111
A. The Organization of the Federal Legislature	111
B. Congressional Power	112
C. The Legislative Process	112
12 • The Executive Branch	115
A. Organization	115
B. The Regulatory Process	116
13 • What Else Is There to Do?	119
A. Read	119
B. Read American History	120
C. Compare the Way Stories Are Reported	121
D. Read a Newspaper Front to Back Every Day	121
E. Watch C-SPAN for an Hour Each Day	122
F. Go to Court and Observe	123
G. Learn Something About Culture and Social Behavior	125
H. Get a Job in a Law Firm or Government Office	125
I. If You Can't Get a Paying Job, Volunteer	127
J. Write	127
14 • Conclusion	131
Index	135

Acknowledgments

No project like this comes about without the work of many people, and I need to thank them for their help and support. In particular, I thank the students who wrote to me with suggestions about what they would like to see in a document like this. I also thank my colleagues in the LCR program at Syracuse—Professors Elizabeth August, Elton Fukumoto, Andrew Greenberg, Susan James, Lynn Levey, Aliza Milner, Kathleen O’Connor, Lucille Rignanese, and Richard Risman, who have helped me think about many of these issues, and Lynn Oatman for her administrative help. Professor Risman also read an early draft and offered helpful suggestions, for which I’m particularly grateful. Thanks to Dean Hannah Arterian and Associate Dean Tomas Gonzalez for their interest and support. And thanks to my students, who always help me see things in ways I hadn’t considered. Thanks in particular to Jennifer Pautz for her research help. And thanks to my parents, Joan Upton-Holder and Henry Gallacher, and my step-father, Roy Upton-Holder, who all made it possible for me to come to law school. As always, this book is for Julie McKinstry.