ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

MAO: In this Supplement, Michael thanks UHLC graduates Sarah Rodriguez Arvidsson and Emiliano Fragoso, who helped with basic document acquisitions, analysis, and more importantly, the careful filing that is a prerequisite for this bibliographical project. In addition, I have been blessed by working with several great UHLC Research Librarians who have been indispensable in this overall book, since the beginning; those with whom I have worked on the various iterations to this Supplement include Mon Yin Lung, Lauren Schroeder, Kay Stein, and Emily Lawson. At Carolina, Amy and I thank Keith Sipe and Linda Lacy. To the wonderful Amy Gajda, welcome aboard. And in many various forms and forums, I thank Leland B. Ware, William A. Kaplin, Augustina H. Reyes, and Deborah Y. Jones. Finally, this book is a labor of teaching love, and I learn each time from my law and other graduate students, who always see more in these cases than I had recognized. In essence, I stay in this project for them, and to make me a better teacher and learner.

AG: First, I thank the amazing Michael Olivas for inviting me to join this ever-exciting project and for his wit, wisdom, talent, and leadership. I also thank my research assistants at Tulane Law School who have helped with this supplement: Laura Fink, Faith Perdue, Christopher Arkin, Rebecca Sha, and Shannon Chapman. I am also grateful to the students in my Law of Higher Education classes at Tulane whose insightful comments and questions helped to shape this supplement. And, finally, I thank Dave, Michael, and Matthew, who support me in ways big and small.
