School Safety in the United States

A Reasoned Look at the Rhetoric

David C. May
Associate Professor of Sociology
Mississippi State University

Carolina Academic Press
Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2014
David C. May
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

May, David C., 1966-
School safety in the United States : a reasoned look at the rhetoric / David C. May.
pages cm
Includes bibliographical references and index.
ISBN 978-1-61163-021-3 (ali. paper)
1. School violence--United States. 2. School discipline--United States. 3. Schools--Safety measures--United States. 4. Behavior modification--United States. 5. Classroom management--United States. I. Title.

LB3013.32.M39 2014
371.7'82--dc23

2014031419

Carolina Academic Press
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

This book is dedicated to my wife, Natalie, and my children, James, Will, and Grace May. The main reason I care so deeply about school safety (and thus the topics in this book) is because of these incredible people and my desire for them to be safe when I'm not around to protect them. They are my reasons for living and, without them, nothing I've accomplished or hope to accomplish really matters.

Contents

Acknowledgements xiii

Chapter 1 · Introducing the Critical Study of School Safety 3
- Definition of School Safety 6
- School Safety Statistics 8
- Outline of This Book 9
- References 11

Chapter 2 · Forty Years of School Homicides: Are Our Kids Really More at Risk in the 21st Century? 13
- Well-Known School Shootings 13
  - Heath High School: Paducah, Kentucky 13
  - Westside Middle School: Jonesboro, Arkansas 14
  - Columbine High School: Littleton, Colorado 14
  - Sandy Hook Elementary School: Newtown, Connecticut 14
- The Facts about School Shootings 15
- The Fiction of Rampant School Shootings and Its Causes 18
- Data Source 19
- Finding Articles: The Search Process 19
- Results 19
  - H_1 Results—Number of Incidents 20
  - H_2 Results—Number of Victims 20
- Discussion 20
- Conclusion 22
- Notes 24
- References 24

Chapter 3 · Predictors of Weapon Reporting Among Students: Who Tells and Why? 29
- Literature Review about Weapon Reporting 29
- Students' Willingness to Report Weapons Possession by Other Students 30
- Non-Criminological Theories of Reporting Behavior 32
- Method 33
  - Subjects 34
  - Survey Administration 35
  - Study Measures 35
    - Social Bonding/Social Capital 36
    - School Climate 36
    - School Misbehavior 36
    - Strain 38
    - Self-Efficacy 38
    - School Safety 38

Self-Reported School Performance 38
Analytic Plan 38
Results 40
Discussion 42
Conclusions 46
Notes 47
References 48

Chapter 4 · Parental Aggression against Teachers: A New Threat or an Old Myth? 53
Literature Review 54
Methods 55
Survey Construction 55
Data Collection 56
Data Analysis 57
Results 57
Descriptive Analyses 57
Investigative Analyses 62
Discussion 63
Interpretation of Results 63
Recommendations for Future Research 65
Recommendations for Policy and Practice 65
References 66

Chapter 5 · Fear of Crime in Schools 71
History of Fear of Crime Research 72
Measuring Fear of Crime among Adolescents 73
Correlates of Fear of Crime among Adults 74
Gender and Fear of Crime 74
Race and Fear of Crime 74
Social Class and Fear of Crime 75
Victimization and Fear of Crime 75
Incivilities and Fear of Crime 75
Fear of Crime among Adolescents 75
Explanations for Fear of Crime among Adolescents 77
Socialization 78
Lifestyles 78
Vulnerability 79
Methodology 79
Dependent Variables 80
Independent Variables 81
Economic Status 81
Victimization Experience 82
Missing Data 82
Results 82
Discussion 88
Conclusions and Policy Implications 92
Appendix 93
Notes 94
References 94

Chapter 6 · Corporal Punishment in the United States 97
Literature Review 100
Parent-to-Child Corporal Punishment 100
School Corporal Punishment 101
Parental Factors 101
Socioeconomic Status 101
Geographic Setting 102
Crime Statistics 102
Theoretical Explanations of Corporal Punishment 102
Social Capital 102
Culture 103
Strain 104
Purpose of This Study 105
Method 106
Sample 106
Dependent Variables 106
Independent Variables 106
U.S. Census Bureau Data (2000) 107
Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services 107
Kentucky State Police 107
Glenmary Research Center 107
Kentucky State Board of Elections (KSBE) 107
Kentucky Legislative Research Commission 108
Results 108
Discussion 112
References 115

Chapter 7 · Evaluating the Effectiveness of a Bullying Prevention Program: Evidence from a Quasi-Experimental Design 119
Literature Review 119
Definition of Bullying 119
Definitions of Bullies, Victims, and Bystanders 120
Effects of Bullying 121
Effectiveness of School-Wide Bullying Programs 122
Program Components 123
Summary of Existing Evidence about School-Wide Bullying Prevention Programs 125
Methods 125
Program Description 125
Sample and Procedure 126
Administration Instructions 126
Survey Administration 127
Survey Instrument 127
Survey Information 127
Results 128
Discussion 130
Limitations 131
Future Directions 132
Conclusion 133
References 133

Chapter 8 · Reducing Disproportionate Minority Contact in Schools: Stemming the School to Prison Pipeline 137
Causes 138
Socioeconomic Status 139
Teacher/Student Relationship 140
Familial Support 141
Consequences 141
Academic Productivity and Learning Capabilities 141
School Suspensions and Dropouts of Minorities 142
Method 143
Discussion 146
Conclusions and Policy Implications 148
Appendix 150
References 151

Chapter 9 · Exploring Alternatives to Out-of-School Suspension: A Quasi-Experimental Study Examining the Effectiveness of Community Service Work 155
Out-of-School Suspensions 156
Alternatives to Suspension 156
Community Service Work Programs 159
Method 160
Data Collection and Experimental Design 161
Dependent Variables 161
Results 162
Discussion 165
Limitations and Suggestions for Future Research 165
Conclusions and Policy Implications 167
References 168

Chapter 10 · School Resource Officers: Effective Tools When Properly Used? 171
School Resource Officers 171
Community Policing 174
Community Policing, Schools, and School Resource Officers 175
SROs in Kentucky 176
Data Collection 177
Results 177
Discussion 183
References 184

Chapter 11 · School-Level Crisis Response Planning 189
What Is a Crisis and a Crisis Response? 190
My Experience 190
Conclusions 199
Appendix 11.1: K–12 Security & Vulnerability Assessment 201
Appendix 11.2: Selected Handouts from School-Level Crisis Response Plan Model 221
Crisis Response Plan Table of Contents 221
Individual Responsibilities 222

Drill Schedule and Log 223
Emergency Team "Toolbox" 224
Table of Contents for Crisis Response Protocols 225
Accident with Severe Injuries 226
References 227

Chapter 12 · Tying it All Together 229
Common Themes Emerging from School Safety Research 229
Recommendations for Future Research 236
Concluding Remarks 238
References 239

Index 241

Acknowledgements

This book, and the research included herein, would never have been possible without the guidance, assistance, knowledge, and friendship of Mr. Jon Akers, Executive Director of the Kentucky Center for School Safety. Although I had dabbled in school safety research prior to my position as School Safety Research Fellow at the Kentucky Center for School Safety (KCSS), it was in that position that I truly begin to understand the complexities of school safety. Much of that understanding is due to his own knowledge and experience and to discussions, experiences, and research that Jon and I shared over the decade we worked together at KCSS. Jon allowed me the flexibility to conduct research about school safety in a wide variety of areas. He and I didn't always see eye-to-eye but, in every discussion, our mutual respect for one another and our friendship was not damaged by the sometimes heated disagreements we had about how school safety research should be conducted. In the time since I have left the KCSS, I have continued to rely on Jon's guidance and friendship to help my family as we have dealt with more personal issues. I treasure the time I've spent with Jon and all the things I have learned from him. His impact in my life and the lives of my family is one that will truly never be forgotten.

In addition to Jon, there were numerous KCSS staff that helped me in my research over the years. I'd like to thank Kristie Blevins, Yanfen Chen, Barbara Gateskill, Nadine Johnson, Shannon Means, Ashlee Oliver, and a number of other current and/or former KCSS employees that tolerated my impatience and crazy requests that shaped my research agenda over the years. I would also like to send a special thanks to Lee Ann Morrison, my replacement as KCSS research fellow, whose desire to use this book in her class was the final push that I needed to put this project together. Without that decision, the book certainly wouldn't be in print in 2014 (and might not ever have made it to print).

Next, I'd like to thank the numerous coauthors that I worked with in conducting the research included in this book. Without exception, each of them was a joy to work with and I'm happy to count them as coauthors, colleagues, and friends. Each of the chapters where coauthors are listed are better products because of their contribution.

Next, I'd like to send a special note of gratitude to Ethan Stokes and Brianna Wright, graduate students that worked with me in preparing this book. Although both are listed as coauthors for one or more chapters, their contributions went far beyond those chapters. Ethan assisted in updating the literature reviews in a number of areas and I'm thankful to him for that. Brianna served as my copy editor, peer reviewer, and guide; without her skills and quick responses to requests, this book would have been delayed for weeks and perhaps even months.

Finally, I'd like to thank Beth Hall and her coworkers with Carolina Academic Press. Working with them has always been a joy; their easygoing nature and their attention to detail makes any work I've done with them much better (and much more pleasant) than an author could expect from a publisher. I look forward to continuing my work with them in the future.