

CLINICAL LEGAL EDUCATION

A TEXTBOOK FOR LAW SCHOOL
CLINICAL PROGRAMS

DAVID F. CHAVKIN
PROFESSOR OF LAW
AMERICAN UNIVERSITY
WASHINGTON COLLEGE OF LAW

CLINICAL LEGAL EDUCATION

A TEXTBOOK FOR LAW SCHOOL
CLINICAL PROGRAMS

DAVID F. CHAVKIN
PROFESSOR OF LAW
AMERICAN UNIVERSITY
WASHINGTON COLLEGE OF LAW

ISBN: 978-1-42240-725-7 (Print)
ISBN: 978-0-32718-072-2 (eBook)

This publication is designed to provide authoritative information in regard to the subject matter covered. It is sold with the understanding that the publisher is not engaged in rendering legal, accounting, or other professional services. If legal advice or other expert assistance is required, the services of a competent professional should be sought.

Copyright © 2002 Carolina Academic Press, LLC
All Rights Reserved

No copyright is claimed in the text of statutes, regulations, and excerpts from court opinions quoted within this work.

Carolina Academic Press, LLC
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.caplaws.com

Printed in the United States of America
2018 printing

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments.....	xi
Chapter 1—Introduction to Clinical Legal Education	1
A. Theory and Practice	1
B. Skills and Values	2
C. Experiential Learning.....	4
D. The Current Landscape	4
Chapter 2—Clinical Methodology	7
A. The Problem of the Kitchen Organizer	7
B. Instructional Settings	10
1. Live-Client Representation.....	10
2. Making and Evaluating Choices	11
3. Case Supervision.....	12
4. Rounds	13
5. Seminar	13
6. Simulations	14
C. Role of the Clients	14
D. Efficiency.....	15
E. Being Vulnerable.....	16
F. Trying It Out	16
Chapter 3—Grading and Evaluation	19
A. Process, Not Outcomes	19
B. Evaluative Criteria	20
1. Relationships with Clients.....	20
2. Theory of the Client: Development and Implementation	20
3. Practice Management	21
4. Oral and Written Advocacy	21
5. Professional Relationships	21
6. Professional Responsibilities.....	22
7. Reflective Skills Development	22
8. Participation in Class	22

9. Participation in Simulations	22
10. Personal Development	23
11. Miscellaneous	23
C. Earning Grades	23
D. Continuous Feedback	24
E. Self-Evaluation	24
Chapter 4—Ethical Issues in Client Representation	25
Practice Scenario 1	25
Practice Scenario 2	27
Practice Scenario 3	27
Practice Scenario 4	28
Practice Scenario 5	30
Practice Scenario 6	31
Practice Scenario 7	32
Practice Scenario 8	33
Practice Scenario 9	34
Practice Scenario 10	35
Practice Scenario 11	36
Chapter 5—Theory of the Client	39
A. Defining our Terms	39
B. Scope of the Concept	39
C. Theory of the Case	40
D. Role of Case Theory	40
E. The Dynamic Nature of Client Theory	42
F. Deconstructing Case Theory	42
1. Factual Theory	42
2. Factual Theory Versus the “Facts”	42
3. Focus of the Factual Theory	44
4. The Legal Theory	44
G. Reunifying Case Theory	45
H. The Client as a Component of Case Theory	46
I. Levels of Case Theory	48
J. Creating a Good Case Theory	48
K. Starting Wide, Ending Narrow	50
Chapter 6—Client-Centered Representation	51
A. Defining the Term Operationally	51
B. Giving Up Control	52
C. Uniqueness of the Client	53
D. Holistic Lawyering	53

E. Defining the Scope.....	54
F. A Helper, Not a Mere Servant	54
G. Keeping Client Needs Paramount.....	55
H. Strengths and Weaknesses	56
I. Justifying the Effort	57
Chapter 7—Interviewing	59
A. Importance of Interviewing	59
B. Goals of Interviewing.....	60
C. Inconsistency of Goals	64
D. Techniques and Choices	64
E. Stages.....	66
1. Background Research.....	66
2. Small Talk or Ice-Breaking.....	67
3. Introduction or Foundation	68
4. Overview.....	69
5. Development of Initial Theories of the Client.....	69
6. Fact Development.....	70
7. Conclusion	71
8. Ordering our Stages.....	72
F. Non-Verbal Communication.....	72
1. Proxemics.....	72
2. Kinesics.....	73
3. Paralinguistics.....	73
4. Chronemics	74
5. Personal Appearance	74
G. Acknowledging our Limitations	74
H. Minimizing the Harm.....	75
I. Constructing our Clients	76
J. Special Ethical Issues.....	76
Chapter 8—Fuzzy Thinking	79
A. Defining our Terms	79
B. Variability of Language.....	80
C. Fuzzy Client Theory.....	81
D. Applying the Concept in Practice	82
E. Fuzzy Thinking in a Bivalent Legal System	84
Chapter 9—Collaboration.....	85
A. Two Heads Are Better Than One	86
B. Two Heads Are Not Always Better Than One	86
C. Collaboration as a Skill and Value.....	87

D. What is Collaboration?.....	88
E. Characteristics of Effective Collaboration.....	89
F. Selecting Partners.....	90
G. Collaboration and Clinic	90
Chapter 10—Fact Investigation	93
A. The Importance of Fact Investigation	94
B. What Do We Mean by Fact Investigation?	95
C. Role of Fact Investigation.....	96
D. Telling Persuasive Stories.....	96
E. The Importance of a Good Story	98
F. Factors Affecting Persuasiveness of a Story	99
1. Internal Consistency.....	99
2. External Consistency.....	99
3. Explanation	99
4. Adequacy of Detail.....	99
5. Emotional Content	100
6. Socio-Political Content.....	100
G. A Caution in Thinking About Factual Theory.....	100
H. Factors Affecting Plausibility of a Witness.....	101
1. Competency	101
2. Motive	101
3. Status	102
4. Physical and Demographic Characteristics.....	102
I. A Caution in Thinking About Witnesses/Evidence	103
J. Direct and Circumstantial Evidence	103
K. Trial by Inference	104
L. Testing our Hypotheses	105
M. Developing a Fact Investigation Plan.....	106
1. What Evidence Should Be Obtained?.....	106
2. Where Should that Evidence Be Obtained?.....	108
3. How Should that Evidence Be Obtained?.....	109
4. What Types of Formal/Informal Discovery Should You Utilize?.....	110
5. By Whom Should that Evidence Be Obtained?	110
6. When Should that Evidence Be Obtained?	111
7. How Much Evidence is Enough?.....	111
Chapter 11—Counseling.....	113
A. Relinquishing Decisionmaking Authority.....	113
B. Fuzzy Counseling.....	114
C. Counseling Builds on Interviewing	115
D. Helping the Client Reach a Decision.....	116

E. Structure	116
1. Preparation	117
2. Ice-Breaking.....	119
3. Fact Updating.....	120
4. Goal Clarification	121
5. Presentation and Review of Options.....	121
6. Decisionmaking	123
7. Closure.....	124
F. Self-Disclosure.....	124
G. Attorney Opinions.....	125
H. Barriers to Effective Counseling	125
I. Transference and Counter-Transference	127
J. A Process Worth the Effort.....	128
Chapter 12—Negotiation	129
A. Negotiation and ADR.....	129
B. Importance of Negotiation Skills.....	130
C. Expanding our Negotiating Goals	131
D. What Is Information?	131
E. Negotiation Builds on Interviewing and Counseling Skills	132
F. Initiating Negotiations.....	132
G. The Place of the Client.....	133
H. Choosing a Location	134
I. Making the Initial Contact.....	134
J. In Person or by Telephone	135
K. Planning and Preparation	135
L. Determining the Context for the Negotiation	136
M. Strategy-Style Combination	137
1. Choosing a Strategy	137
2. Selecting a Style.....	138
3. Factors to Consider in Choosing a Strategy-Style.....	139
4. Interplay of Strategy and Style	140
N. Obtaining and Assessing Information.....	141
O. Persuading Opponents.....	143
P. Interplay of Persuasion and Strategy	144
1. Argument	144
2. Appeal.....	144
3. Threats and Promises	144
4. Threats and Extortion.....	146
Q. Getting Down to Real Bargaining.....	147
R. The Bargaining Continuum	147
S. Concessions	149

T. Impact of the Negotiating Process	150
U. Closure.....	151
Chapter 13—Attorney Satisfaction	153
A. The Statistics for Too Many	153
B. The Tyranny of Billable Hours	154
C. Work in Other Settings	155
D. Developing a Theory of Ourselves	155
1. Identifying and Prioritizing	156
2. Money	156
3. Political Agenda	156
4. Power	157
5. Thrill of the Kill	157
6. Feeling Good About Your Work	158
7. Intellectual Challenge.....	158
8. Status	159
9. Having a Life Outside the Office.....	161
10. Being a Responsible Partner in a Relationship	161
11. Being a “Good” Parent	162
E. Making the Choices.....	163
Index	165

Dedications

This book is dedicated to:

My parents, Herbert and Shirley, who taught me many of the principles reflected in my work as a teacher;

My daughter, Rachel, who taught me (admittedly, sometimes with limited success) to temper the application of those principles with humor and sensitivity; and, most of all,

My partner, Linda, who was there at the creation of this project and supported (and occasionally drove me) through the development of this textbook.

David F. Chavkin

April 1, 2002

Acknowledgments

This textbook would not have been possible without the work of and support by:

My clinical colleagues at the American University, Washington College of Law, especially Ann Shalleck, Elliott Milstein, Bob Dinerstein, Binny Miller, Rick Wilson, Susan Bennett, and Nancy Polikoff, who welcomed me to clinical legal education; encouraged me to question, research, and write; and nurtured that process of ongoing exploration through their feedback and patience.

Dean Claudio Grossman of the Washington College of Law, American University, and Associate Deans Bob Dinerstein and Andy Pike who supported this project financially and spiritually and helped create an atmosphere in which this kind of work could move forward.

My dean's fellows, especially Michelle Duluc and Kerry Brainard, who demonstrated commitment, creativity, and independence in conducting much of the research supporting this text.

Anderson Publishing Company and its editors, who recognized the need for a textbook to use in law school clinical programs and who supported this project through its realization.

Gary Bellow and Bea Moulton, whose groundbreaking textbook in 1978, THE LAWYERING PROCESS, MATERIALS FOR CLINICAL INSTRUCTION IN ADVOCACY, helped establish a foundation for the critical reflection and scholarship that would mark the development of clinical legal education.

David Binder and Susan Price for their text LEGAL INTERVIEWING AND COUNSELING and David Binder, Paul Bergman, and Susan Price for their text LAWYERS AS COUNSELORS for developing much of the theory for what we now know as client-centered representation; and David Binder and Paul Bergman for their text FACT INVESTIGATION and the approaches to fact analysis reflected in this text as well. Their influence on my education as a clinical teacher is sufficiently pervasive that some of their insights are doubtless reflected in this text.

Robert Bastress and Joseph Harbaugh for their text INTERVIEWING, COUNSELING, AND NEGOTIATING and their efforts to integrate the teaching of lawyering skills. Their influence is also doubtless reflected in this textbook. The bargaining chart in the chapter on “Negotiation” explicitly incorporates the chart from Joe’s negotiating training materials, also reflected in the “Weber” problem that runs through the Bastress and Harbaugh text.

My co-teachers and former clinical colleagues at the University of Maryland (especially Rick North and Mary Helen McNeal), Georgetown University (especially Randi Mandelbaum), and the Catholic University of America (especially Ellen Scully and Sandy Ogilvy), and American University (especially Brenda Smith and Kate Bunker) who generously shared their ideas and their insights about clinical teaching.

The clinical teachers throughout the Mid-Atlantic region who participated in the Mid-Atlantic Clinical Theory and Practice Workshop at which a draft of this book was presented and whose comments helped reshape this text.

And, finally, my students in the various clinical courses I have taught since 1990, especially Ben Sigel, whose contributions to my education certainly exceeded anything that I could have contributed to theirs.

David F. Chavkin

April 1, 2002