I would like to thank the many people who helped me in writing this book.

First, I would like to thank my research assistants, Eric Biscopink, Chuck Krebs, Gordon Mowen, Young-Eun Park, Darren Smith, and Richard Wooldridge, as well as Franklin Runge, Beau Steenken, and Ryan Valentin who provided valuable assistance with research.

In addition, I would like to thank April Brooks and Richard Wooldridge for their extraordinary assistance in preparing and editing the many charts and diagrams in this book. And I would like to thank Mary Ann Isaacs for her careful typing and editing of the manuscript.

And last, but not least, I would like to thank the many people who offered valuable insights and/or comments on portions of this book. Specifically, I would like to thank Susan Cancelosi, Mary Davis, Josh Douglas, Chris Frost, Izzy Goldowitz, Mike Healy, Nicole Huberfeld, Diane Kraft, Dana Muir, Paul Salamanca, Carol Weiser, and the students in my 2015 Employee Benefits class.
Employee benefits is a vast and complex area of law. This book is intended to provide readers with a broad overview of the subject as well as a taste of both its breadth and its depth.

In order to assist readers with a broad overview of the subject, the book begins with a detailed table of contents and has many charts and diagrams. In order to help readers understand how the law applies, the book provides many examples. Finally, the book includes an extensive set of footnotes with citations that not only provide readers with support for the statements made in the text but also refer them to additional sources that they can consult for further study of the subject.

The book is designed primarily for use by J.D. students enrolled in an employee benefits course. I hope that LLM students, practitioners, judges, and scholars who need an overview of the law will also find it useful.
