Series Note

The Legal Research Series published by Carolina Academic Press includes an increasing number of titles from states around the country. The goal of each book is to provide law students, practitioners, paralegals, college students, and laypeople with the essential elements of legal research in each state. Unlike more bibliographic texts, the Legal Research Series books seek to explain concisely both the sources of state law research and the process for conducting legal research effectively.

Preface and Acknowledgments

This research book includes instructions on both print and electronic sources. The print resource instructions are included as the first part of each chapter and can easily be skipped if this information is not needed. However, many legal researchers report the need to use print resources for specific projects, which is the main reason this book includes print resource instructions. Some researchers also report a better understanding of how legal information is organized by looking at the print resources. For example, some say that looking at statutory codes in print is more straightforward than looking for that same information electronically. Because each researcher approaches the research process differently, this book offers instructions on all the various ways to find legal information.

I owe a great debt of gratitude to Suzanne Rowe, series editor, for her support of this project. She generously provided both her time and her material for Chapter 1 and Appendix A, for which I am grateful.

I also owe many thanks to others who supported me throughout this project with advice and materials: specifically, the Ross-Blakely Law Library staff and the legal writing department at the Sandra Day O'Connor College of Law (Arizona State University). They are composed of wonderfully talented individuals. The law school simply could not function without them, and they are the best colleagues one could hope for in any job.

In addition, no acknowledgement would be complete without thanking my parents, Thom and Carol Havelaar, for their support of all my writing projects, from the first book review I wrote at the age of twelve that they lovingly tucked in the pages of a scrapbook to all of my current work.

Finally, my greatest thanks go to my husband, William, and my son, Eric, for understanding my need to write and reminding me why life is beautiful.
