About the Series

Carolina Academic Press, in cooperation with Northeastern University School of Law, is pleased to offer a new series of teaching materials, the Lawyering Series.

Carolina Academic Press, an independent publisher, has a strong reputation for publishing innovative print and digital teaching materials for the law school community. Northeastern University School of Law has long been known as an innovator in legal education, with a national reputation for its Cooperative Legal Education (Co-op) Program and its rich clinical and externship offerings.

Over the last decade, the American Bar Association has urged American law schools to better prepare their students for the practice of law. Most recently, the ABA has enacted Standards that require all law students to complete a minimum of six credit hours of “experiential” courses. This requirement commenced for students beginning law school in fall 2016.

It is our sincere hope that the Lawyering Series will support law schools and law professors—both full-time and adjunct—as they search for more innovative and more practical teaching materials.

We welcome your comments and suggestions. Please contact Carolina Academic Press at manuscript@caplaw.com.

Acknowledgments

We are thankful to many individuals who provided insights and support: Laurie Sleeper Wells, administrative assistant; attorney at law Vonda M. Sargent; Kevin Bouilly, litigation consultant at Persuasion Strategies; and attorney at law Jonathan Barnard. A special thank you to Marilyn J. Berger and John B. Many thanks for the support and assistance provided through Seattle University School of Law: Dean Annette C. Clark; Dean for Finance and Administration Richard Bird; Associate Dean for Academic Affairs John Eason; and Stephanie Wilson, the law school's Head of Reference Services.

And, we want to express our appreciation to our friends and professional colleagues at Carolina Academic Press: Keith Sipe, Publisher; Carol McGeehan, Senior Acquisitions Editor; Ryland Bowman, Managing Editor; and TJ Smithers, Production Associate.

About the Authors

Ronald H. Clark is a Distinguished Practitioner in Residence at Seattle University Law School, where he teaches Pretrial Advocacy, Trial Advocacy and Essential Lawyering Skills. He is a nationally known lecturer and author. His previous books include Pretrial Advocacy, Trial Advocacy, Opening Statement and Closing Argument, Evidence: Skills and Strategies and Cross-Examination Handbook. Mr. Clark has lectured for numerous bar and other associations across the country, as well as for the Department of Justice in Bosnia and Kosovo. Mr. Clark served in the King County Prosecutor's office in Seattle, Washington, as a senior deputy prosecutor, head of the trial teams, and, for ten years, as the Chief Deputy of the Criminal Division. Subsequently, Mr. Clark was the Senior Training Counsel at the National Advocacy Center in South Carolina.

Thomas O'Toole, Ph.D., is President of Sound Jury Consulting. He has practiced across the nation since 2003 in nearly every litigation type. He has consulted on matters as small as low-exposure medical malpractice claims and as large as "bet-the-company" MDL class actions and billion dollar environmental claims. He received his Ph.D. in litigation psychology and communication from the University of Kansas, which houses one of the nation's only doctoral programs designed to offer formal training for those entering the field of jury consulting.
