Acknowledgments

First and foremost, we would like to thank all of the individuals that assisted in this project, including the local- and federal-level legal officials, social service providers, and survivors. This book would have not been possible without your stories and experiences with human trafficking.

We would like to thank our editor, Beth Hall. She fully supported this project from the initial proposal, and guided us throughout the process.

We would like to thank our friends and family who remained patient with our absence through travel and constant writings. They listened to us as we tackled new ideas, and fully supported this endeavor when it was nothing more than a discussion between the two of us.
