This is dedicated to the many teachers and professors I have had who helped me to become a better reader and writer, to the lawyers and judges who mentored me to learn to simplify and organize complex material, and to Lisa and my family — who put up with me while I tried to use the skills that I have been given to write this book. I am grateful as well to Mercer University for grants which helped make this possible and to students who “test drove” earlier versions — and who helped me turn this course into something both practical and which can help pass the bar!

Note on Case Editing

Because this book is designed for upper-level students, all of the materials used have been edited for ease of reading and understanding, and often without indicating an omission or minor alteration. For example, many footnotes, citations, and quotation marks have been deleted. In addition, most cases begin with a summary of the facts, and contained within brackets. All of this was done to shorten the text, to focus on remedies, and to increase readability. In no instance was the meaning of a case altered.
