

Satires of Power in Yoruba Visual Culture

Yomi Ola

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
Durham, North Carolina

Copyright © 2013
Yomi Ola
All Rights Reserved

Library of Congress Cataloging-in-Publication Data

Ola, Yomi.

Satires of power in Yoruba visual culture / Yomi Ola.

p. cm. -- (African world series)

Includes bibliographical references and index.

ISBN 978-1-61163-037-4 (alk. paper)

1. Art, Yoruba. 2. Satire in art. 3. Political satire, Nigerian. 4. Power (Social sciences) in art. I. Title. II. Series: Carolina Academic Press African world series.

N7399.N5O43 2012
709.669--dc23

2012015402

CAROLINA ACADEMIC PRESS
700 Kent Street
Durham, North Carolina 27701
Telephone (919) 489-7486
Fax (919) 493-5668
www.cap-press.com

Printed in the United States of America

In memory of Ebunoluwa, my mother

Contents

List of Illustrations	xi
Series Editor's Preface	xix
Acknowledgments	xxi
Introduction	3
The Yoruba	4
Power, Praise, and Satire	6
The Press, Power and Visual Satire in Nigeria	8
Previous Studies	10
Notes on Method	11
Structure	12
Notes	15
Chapter 1 • Satirizing with Yoruba Sculpture	19
Satire amongst the Yoruba	20
Yoruba Satire Scholarship	26
Satire in Yoruba Sculpture	27
Yoruba Satirical Masking	31
The European Colonialist: From Praise to Parody	33
Satirizing Antisocial Behavior	38
Traditional Yoruba Sculptors	44
Olowe of Ise: Commentary at the Portals of Power	47
Ilekun Aafin Ogoga	49
Opo-ile Aafin Ogoga	53
Group Figure	55
Conclusion	56
Notes	57
Chapter 2 • Satirizing Colonialism: Akinola Lasekan (1916–1972)	65
The Context of Lasekan's Cartooning	70
Cartoon, Cartooning, and Caricature	75

The Nigerian Press and Political Cartooning before Lasekan	83
The Iconography of Lasekan's Colonial Satires	83
Notes	91
Chapter 3 • Satirizing Military Dictatorship	97
Political Cartooning in Postcolonial Nigeria	100
Criticizing Dictatorship in Nigeria	101
Newspaper Caricatures of Nigerian Dictators	103
Harsh Economic Realities	110
Human Rights and Press Freedom	117
WAI (War Against Indiscipline)	121
Armed Robbery	126
Celebrating Dictatorship	130
Postcolonial Yoruba Cartoonists	134
Cartooning, Media Ownership and Dictatorship	142
Notes	146
Chapter 4 • Satirizing Political Corruption	153
Political Corruption: The Common Man and the "Bigman"	154
Consequences of Corruption	176
Notes	181
Chapter 5 • Satirizing from the Heart of the Empire: Rotimi Fani-Kayode and Yinka Shonibare	185
Rotimi Fani-Kayode	188
Bronze Head	191
Yinka Shonibare, MBE	197
The Diary of a Victorian Dandy (21:00 Hours)	201
Conclusion	211
Notes	211
Conclusion	219
Appendix A	225
Glossary	227
Bibliography	231
Index	243

Series Editor's Preface

The Carolina Academic Press African World Series, inaugurated in 2010, offers significant new works in the field of African and Black World studies. The series provides scholarly and educational texts that can serve both as reference works and as readers in college classes.

Studies in the series are anchored in the existing humanistic and the social scientific traditions. Their goal, however, is the identification and elaboration of the strategic place of Africa and its Diaspora in a shifting global world. More specifically, the studies will address gaps and larger needs in the developing scholarship on Africa and the Black World.

The series intends to fill gaps in areas such as African politics, history, law, religion, culture, sociology, literature, philosophy, visual arts, art history, geography, language, health, and social welfare. Given the complex nature of Africa and its Diaspora, and the constantly shifting perspectives prompted by globalization, the series also meets a vital need for scholarship connecting knowledge with events and practices. Reflecting the fact that life in Africa continues to change, especially in the political arena, the series explores issues emanating from racial and ethnic identities, particularly those connected with the ongoing mobilization of ethnic minorities for inclusion and representation.

Toyin Falola
University of Texas at Austin

Acknowledgments

The writing of this book began a few years before my arrival for graduate work at the University of Iowa, where most of my ideas on the subject crystallized. My expression of gratitude begins with recognizing the roles of the chair and members of my dissertation committee at the University of Iowa. I thank Christopher Roy, Craig Adcock, Joni Kinsey, Wallace Tomasini, and the late Rex Honey for penetrating questions that positively impacted the depth and scope of this study.

This book has indirectly benefitted from a few research grants. It is with a deep sense of gratitude that I recognize two consecutive years of support in graduate school by the Institute of International Education, Richard A. Horovitz Fund for Professional Development, which set me on the path toward research for this book. I remain eternally grateful to the Program for Advanced Study of Art and Life in Africa (PASALA) and the C. Maxwell and Elizabeth M. Stanley family for the scholarship funds that facilitated not only a timely completion of my studies at the University of Iowa but also enabled me to conduct the research and interviews in Lagos and London and to write the dissertation that culminates in this book.

In writing this book, I have benefitted greatly from discussions at different times with Rowland Abiodun, Henry Drewal, and Bolaji Campbell. The scholarship of these three distinguished Africanists continues to inspire me.

I owe a debt of gratitude to Bisi Ogunbadejo, Josy Ajiboye, Kenny Adamson, dele jegede, Boye Gbenro, Tayo Fatunla, and Yinka Shonibare who granted access to their work for reproduction and readily responded to my questions over the years. I also acknowledge Bankole Lasekan for insights on the life and work of Baba [Akinola] Lasekan. I specially thank the Drewal/Khan Collection for granting access to Lamidi Fakeye's Pipe Smoker and Jim Escalante, who produced a collection of choice photographs from which the book cover image was selected.

Also, I want to thank Toyin Falola, the series editor, for his unflinching support and interest in the topic and for sending the manuscript out for review and eventual acceptance as part of the African World Series. I am also grateful to the anonymous reviewers for Carolina Academic Press whose insights were very helpful to me in the revision of the manuscript. I thank Patricia Allen and Lisa Angelella for their skillful and vigilant copyediting.

I wish to thank colleagues in the Spelman College Department of Art and Art History for moral support while working on this project. I remain deeply grateful to the Spelman College Office of the Provost for covering the cost of color illustrations for this book and for supporting my scholarly activities.

Finally, I remain grateful to my father, Kehinde Ola, and to family and friends whose unwavering love and support in numerous ways made the task of working on this book less difficult than it could have been. They include Lanre and Tope Ola, Kayode and Bukola Tejumola, and Bunmi and Julie Gbile.

Yomi Ola
January 2012