MATTHEW  BENDER

Preface

It has been 25 years since the publication of the first edition of Sports Law: Cases and Materials. Its publication marked the emergence of sports law as a discrete topic for legal study, and it was quickly and widely adopted for use in the classroom. In this, the Eighth Edition, the overarching organization from the original book holds but less firmly than once thought. The assault on amateurism continues apace, but as of this writing, it appears that the uniquely American system of intercollegiate “amateur” sports will survive the onslaught — “amateurism” will be redefined perhaps, but the intercollegiate sports juggernaut will likely continue to pay homage to the “student athlete,” albeit with increased emoluments. The Eighth Edition thus remains in three parts: Amateur Sports, Professional Sports, and Issues Common to Both.

From the beginning, the authors believed that a skills-oriented problem approach was the best way to approach the study of sports law. While the book is conventional in many ways, offering textual explanation, leading cases, and notes and questions, skills-based problems are featured throughout. This Eighth Edition emphasizes our shared commitment to skills-based teaching and includes a couple of new features, including “sidebars,” “capstone problems,” and case files for simulated hearings. The sidebars are designed to spur class discussion. The capstone problems and case simulations are designed to facilitate comprehensive review and experiential learning.

We are of course grateful to those of you who have chosen to use our book, and we welcome new adopters. Feel free to contact any of us with questions, comments, or suggestions.

Acknowledgments

Professor Yasser would like to thank his long-suffering faculty assistant Cyndee Jones for all her help in getting the Eighth Edition ready for publication, and in particular for her invaluable assistance in keeping apace of the technological revolution that constantly threatens to pass him by.

Upon the publication of the Eighth Edition, Professor McCurdy wishes to acknowledge and express gratitude and warmth for the continual support for over 25 years provided by his spouse, Mary Ann, and son, Michael. He specifically appreciates the outstanding research efforts of Cullen McGowan, 2015 graduate of Gonzaga University School of Law, and the collaborative discussion of cases and the professional sports industry during an International Sports Law class in London and completion of a Directed Research project.

Dean Goplerud would like to thank his wife Mariette Brodeur and his daughters Zoe and Ava Goplerud for their patience with him and understanding as he spent late nights working on this new edition.

Professor Weston would like to thank her students at Pepperdine and family, Brian and Cedric Halloran, for their love of sports.

The Authors gratefully acknowledge and thank an essential player on our team, Elisabeth “Biz” Ebben, Legal Editor at Lexis, for her outstanding editorial work on the this Eighth Edition.
